Ruud Joosten, CEO of Royal BAM Group:

‘First of all, I would like to express my appreciation for the commitment of our people which I saw during my recent onboarding programme, especially during these difficult and uncertain times. When visiting some of BAM’s fantastic projects, I saw that our teams are well-prepared and extremely motivated. It is also clear that BAM’s financial performance is not where it should be. We consider it our main priority to structurally improve the profitability and predictability of the Group. I am looking forward to achieving this ambition in close cooperation with my colleagues at BAM.

In the third quarter, BAM’s performance improved substantially versus the first half of the year. After the severe impact of Covid-19 in the second quarter, most operating companies succeeded in bringing their activities to more normalised efficiency levels. Furthermore, our de-risking and improvement initiatives resulted in a somewhat better performance in German construction and Dutch civil engineering, while the wind-down of BAM International is progressing.

At the end of September, we announced a major restructuring programme which will deliver cost savings of €100 million annually. In addition, we have started to define our new strategic agenda in order to create more value for our shareholders and solid prospects for all our stakeholders, including our employees. We will inform the market about our new way forward in the first quarter of 2021.'
The current worsening of Covid-19 conditions increases uncertainty. We continue to focus on the health and safety of our people and our clients. Financially, our focus is on the conservation of cash. BAM reiterates its outlook for a positive adjusted result before tax for the second half of 2020.

Business review third quarter 2020

The operating companies in the business line Construction and Property (excluding BAM International), contributed positively to the result in the third quarter. The performance of the Dutch property development and residential construction activities remained strong, with 691 homes sold in the third quarter versus 594 in the comparable period last year. Germany and Belgium operated around break-even while the activities in the United Kingdom and Ireland contributed well.

In the business line Civil engineering (excluding BAM International), the performance in most markets improved. The Netherlands reported a positive result, mainly due to cost savings. After a strong first half year, the UK contribution was lower. Germany returned to profit after the first half loss due to the Cologne Metro settlement, while the activities in Belgium benefited from a claim settlement.

BAM PPP delivered another solid quarter from its existing portfolio while the tender pipeline remains healthy. The discussions with PGGM regarding the extension of the long-term PPP partnership are progressing.

BAM International remained loss making in the third quarter. The process to wind down BAM International has started, and the associated restructuring costs for 2020 will be around €13 million.

Financial position

Trade working capital efficiency remained on a good level and the cash position was solid at €1.2 billion. The capital ratio improved by 1.3% points to 12.6% compared to the first half year, supported by the positive result and a shorter balance sheet.
